New County Development Center to Offer Integrated Services

GUADALUPE COUNTY, TX – Guadalupe County has opened a multi-faceted facility designed to assist residents and commercial businesses through integrated services from engineering and environmental expertise to road and bridge management. The 17,000 sq. ft. building, located at 310 IH 10 West in Seguin, is open for official business as of Sept. 25, 2023.

"The new development center is centrally located in Guadalupe County and is well suited to support professional services in terms of growth and safety," stated Commissioner Engelke of Precinct 2.

"Engineers and environmental health staff will now all reside in the same building. We were using offices at the old hospital ambulatory and had some departments working in two separate buildings. This facility is now able to support future services ensuring positive and well-planned growth within the county."

County Engineer Clay Forister adds, "We will now have a one-stop shop to serve our citizens' permitting, development, and service request needs by having staff from multiple departments under one roof. Being based in one location strengthens our capacity to work together internally to more efficiently deliver significant county projects while also enhancing our customer service."

The Guadalupe County Development Center provides residents with specialized services in permitting, developmental regulations, subdivision plats, geographic reference maps, 911 addressing, and managing the enforcement of public violations according to federal, state, and local regulations. For questions, call Guadalupe County Development Service at (830) 379-9721.
